

The Freedom Climber

The Freedom Climber, made specifically for children under five years of age, is designed to exercise a child's balance by focusing on upper body strength, coordination and motor planning skills. The open design allows therapists and parents to assist children while in use.

Great for facilities or home-based therapists as the Freedom Climber is light-weight and easy to transport.

Benefits:

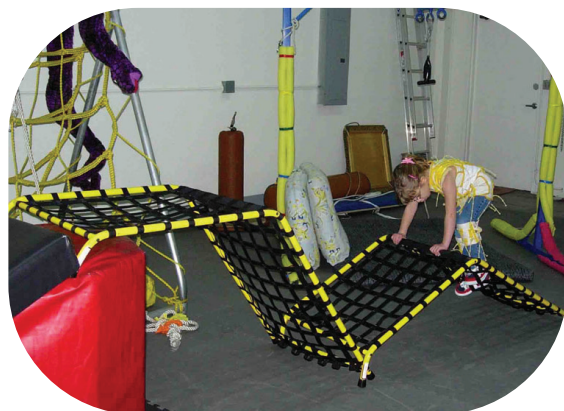

Increased balance
Infant gross motor programming improvements
Enhanced body orientation
Strength training
